Terrace Gladioli Gardens

CULTURAL DIRECTIONS

THE GLADIOLUS will grow on almost any soil that will grow corn or potatoes. Rich garden soil suits it well, and poor soil should be improved with a good dressing of well-rotted manure. Plant as soon as the earth is in a mallow condition usually after trees are out in leaf and until June 15th.

If planted at intervals starting from the time that the ground is in workable condition up to the middle of June, a succession of flowers can be obtained. As a rule the earliest and latest blooms secure the best prices in the market.

After the land is well prepared furrows should be made about three feet apart and about six inches deep for large bulbs. The bulbs are then placed in the furrows from two to four inches apart. Small bulbs are placed closer together and the rows may be closer together for smaller bulbs. The furrows are then covered 3 inches, or in light soil 4 to 5 inches.

In planting in garden beds or borders, place the bulbs four to six inches apart and four to five inches deep.

In commercial planting, put two rows of bulbs in each furrow, or three if the bulbs are small. This saves ground and the bulbs will be better than if planted in single rows.

Bulblets should be planted very early in a shallow trench and kept free from weeds. They often bloom the first year.

FERTILIZER:—For a top dressing after the bulbs are planted, ground bone or hardwood ashes, or both, may be used with good results. The plants thrive with moisture and plenty of sunshine.

FOR CUT FLOWER USE:—The spike should be cut as soon as the first flower opens on the stalk, preferably before the dew is off in the morning, but never in the heat of the day. Place the cut flowers in a deep vase, with at least 8 inches of water. Remove the faded blossoms, cut a little off the stem and change the water daily. Treated this way the buds will open perfectly.

HARVESTING THE BULBS:—After cutting the blooms the bulbs remain in the ground until the end of September to attain their full growth. They must be taken up before freezing weather, the tops cut off, and the bulbs spread on racks to dry thoroughly. They may then be stored on racks, preferably not over four or five inches deep—in any fairly warm, dry cellar and dirt and bulblets can be cleaned off when convenient later on.

TERRACE GLADIOLI GARDENS

Stevensville, Michigan

INTRODUCTION

It gives us great pleasure to present this little catalogue to our customers and flower loving friends. It contains the names and descriptions of more than 125 varieties selected from over 300 we have had on trial. To favor our friends and to win new ones we have made a drastic reduction on many of the newer and rarer varieties.

If you have never grown Gladioli, and have no special idea of what you should buy, you can have beautiful Gladioli listed at from 5c to 15c a bulb the difference being that the higher priced bulbs are newer and rarer, the price decreases as the stock increases.

We have a good supply of most varieties listed. The demand of some varieties are heavier than usual. Kindly place your order early.

The gladiolus is pre-eminently a cut-flower; its long-keeping qualities, combined with its beauty and variety of form and color, adapt it to use in almost any situation where flowers can be used.

The large-flowering types for the large vase or jardiniere, with the dainty small-flowered Primulinus Hybrids for the place that needs just a little color, and between these the other types—there is a place for all of them, whether on the dining table, mantel or porch; in a large vase on the floor, or a bowl on the piano.

To get the most pleasure out of Glad growing it pays to keep adding a few newer varieties to your collection.
